For those responsible for managing remote and intermittent work, the issues are urgent and complex. Planning, implementing and sustaining these work arrangements requires delicately balancing the complexities of human resource and industrial relations considerations and implications.

Our HR and legal experts will explore the complex intersection of HRM and IR issues as they relate to remote and intermittent work. Over two interactive webinars (each 2 hours long), we will provide expert guidance and planning tools, and explore approaches to ensure your organisation's human resources are optimised to deliver results at the right time, in the right way.

These webinars will focus on:

Reworking and realigning jobs and job descriptions

Approaches to assigning work remotely

Revising the Performance Management model

Dynamics of engaging and supporting a 'remote & intermittent' workforce

Remote benefits and reward administration

Legal & IR implications
